Hi Tansy:

I'm doing a story on the breast cancer screening tests that went awry. I have been for weeks trying to get an interview with Eastern Health. They say they have nothing to say until the end of the month, even though for weeks they have had the results of the re-testing from Mount Sinai. Experts I've spoken with indicate that they should be able to tell us what the rate of error was based on that but so far no go. I have two people involved in this story, and I'm filing on it tomorrow. The questions I've been asked by individuals affected are: why are they hearing from the minister about what went wrong? Is this something the minister could address? I've spoken to many people and there is great consternation about how this matter has been handled.

Thanks,
Chris
