The report I will be sending you in a little while contains the information on the DCIS review and the physician letter review. The report will be provided to the Commission tonight. My sense is that they will not introduce it into evidence tomorrow, but review it and use it later. However, I could be wrong.

We have not prepared a press release for tomorrow. The Minister will likely be questioned on the extra 15 people who were not contacted with results (as there are emails which talk about this issue just prior to the March 18 press release which have been disclosed to the commission and entered into evidence). In response to these questions he will talk frankly about the work we have each been doing to contact these people. We will assess tomorrow whether a separate news release is necessary.

With respect to the alternate search strategies for people who may not be identified yet, we hold the strong view that this work must be done. My understanding of time and resource commitment is that Wayne Miller's approach is too large. I suggest using the approach Reza and Terry developed. They have already conducted test runs so they know it identifies additional files.

Please call if you wish to discuss. 682-8946.
