This was Elizabeth's reply. She supports you continuing to handle the issue. I support this completely. I am concerned that bringing another Minister into the mix may just give this story legs.

There was concern that women's issues should be answered by the Min for Status of Women. But not consensus. I personally think our one-minister approach has worked well. Direction was that ministers involved should probably chat Monday to determine who answers what questions. Again, I think we stick with Wiseman only. But if Minister Burke feels it is important then we need to discuss that as she knows that stakeholder group well.

That's my understanding. EM would confirm.

I wasn't aware that any other ministers would be speaking to the issue. Did this direction come out of cabinet?

Tansy,
while your minister has been the lead on the ER/PR issues, I understand that should there be questions raised along the lines of Yvonne Jones criticisms of Minister Burke as the minister of responsible for the Status of Women, then Minister Burke will address. I believe I did ask you to forward the key messages and Qs and As to Minister Burke last week but just want to make sure she has the updated versions of these materials so she is prepared to respond if and when required.

tk,
CT
